HONGKONG, OCTOBER 23RD, 1912.

"Once more I venture to forewarn British politicians that it behooves them to familiarise themselves with the idea of Russo-Japanese guardianship over China, and virtual protectorate, resembling in character, but surpassing in results, Anglo-Russian tutelage in Persia." Thus Dr. DILLON in the September number of the Contemporary Review, but we fail altogether to see on what grounds he bases this conclusion, though allowance must be made for the persistent tendency of this publicist to view every international question through Russian spectacles. The starting-point of his chain of deduction is the Russo-Japanese Agreement of July, 1910, but it is a fair cry from that to the institution of a Russo-Japanese Monroe Doctrine for Eastern Asia. That China's hold on Mongolia and the Three Eastern Provinces is loosening, and that their ultimate absorption by Russia and Japan is within the bounds of possibility, are propositions that few would deny, but it is quite another thing to say that "Nippon and Muscovy will rough-hew the destinies of China in their own way." The naval and military might of these two countries, or perhaps a wonderful mesmeric influence wielded by their statesmen, are to make such an impression on the Powers of Europe that they will not dare to lift a finger in interference—Germany, of course, will look on calmly while Japan and Russia proceed to rough-hew the destinies of Shantung, and France will raise no objection to anything they want to do in Yunnan. Dr.

DILLON is apparently quite satisfied on this point, for he adds that "it looks as though no Power could baffle their schemes." We will therefore accept his estimate, and will not make impertinent enquiries as to the position of foreign bondholders and the possibility of their putting obstacles in the way of these schemes; nor will we lay stress on the German, British, French, and Belgian railway loans. Western Europe and the United States of America being thus set aside, there still remain three parties, for China cannot be put out of the discussion merely by instituting a false parallel between it and Persia, or by cheap sneers at "English and Australian advisers" who are to "waste their wisdom on the desert air." There is rapidly developing in China a national consciousness and sense of community of interest—the outcome of the fact that for the past year the whole land has, for the first time, been working together for the attainment of a common end. This means that the whole weight of China would be thrown into the scale, if need be, against Japan and Russia, and that, if it wishes to resist the "rough-hew," Peking will be able to speak with the knowledge that it has behind it the unanimous sentiment of the whole country; and, on the other hand, should Peking show weakness or a tendency to temporize, the unanimous sentiment of the whole land will make itself felt as a stimulus. Publicists may wave China aside as a disturbing factor in their nicely-laid calculations, but China refuses to be waved aside, and neither President YUAN nor the people are likely to submit to having their national affairs regulated by two other Powers, unless the latter have acquired the right at the point of the sword. It might be objected, too, that there is no essential reason why Russia and Japan should be selected as the two Powers who are to act as self-constituted guardians of China, when we have ourselves, in our Treaty of Alliance, covenanted with Japan to uphold "the independence and integrity of the Chinese Empire"; but Dr. DILLON evidently feels at liberty to claim that treaties are only paper bonds and cease to be of any avail as other party finds necessity for breaking them, and he would no doubt say that in questions of this sort it is the sentiments and intentions of the High Contracting Parties that we have to look to. Even assuming this, it still remains to be demonstrated that there exists between Japan and Russia such community of interest and harmony of views as would satisfy each party that it was justified in throwing down the gauntlet to the Western world for the attainment of the common end. The one salient feature of Russia's Far Eastern diplomacy seems to have been overlooked, though the same motif—the desire to acquire an ice-free port—is found underlying all her dealings with China so far back as 1689, when the Treaty of Nerchinsk was signed. If the Balkan imbroglio results finally in the opening of the Dardanelles to Russian men-of-war, the need of a Pacific port may not be so pressing; but for the present the need remains, and though in their temporary exhaustion the two Powers found it expedient a year or two ago to bow to their situation and pool their claims on Manchuria, we cannot believe that Russia regards that as a final settlement, or that she will rest indefinitely without making another effort to attain her end. Though outward seeming the two Powers have temporarily sunk their differences, this factor must re-emerge as soon as it seems good to Russia that it should do so, and even now must prevent any such harmony of purpose with Japan as would enable the two Powers to work together against the rest of the world in the way contemplated by Dr. DILLON.

Extra provision is being made for excursionists to Macao this week-end by the Hongkong, Canton and Macao Steamboat Co., for particulars of which the reader is referred to the Company's advertisement on page 7.

Two chair coolies were brought before Mr. Melbourne at the Magistracy yesterday charged with causing injury to a child. The mother and child were walking along Gage Street and the coolies rushed across the street to pick up a fare and knocked the child down, causing an injury to her head. His Worship fined the defendants $1 each and cautioned them.

Yesterday the British and foreign warships in port dressed ship in honour of the anniversary of the birthday of the Empress of Germany.

The return of visitors to the City Hall Library and Museum for the week ending the 20th October shows that 412 non-Chinese and 104 Chinese visited the Library, and 104 non-Chinese and 2,845 Chinese visited the Museum.

A report was current in Bangkok, on October 8th, that the defaulting cashier of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank at Hongkong had made his way into Bangkok. On the arrival of the Donsi, there was a great stir in anticipation of the capture of the thief. A representative of the Hongkong Bank, together with Mr. S. Groves, of the police, boarded the vessel, but their investigations failed to reveal any person answering to the description.

A woman living in Fat Hing Street reports to the police that four men entered her residence on the pretence of taking a basket there, and one of the four, who was armed with a revolver, caught her by the throat and threatened to kill her if she called out. A second man kept guard while the other two attempted to snatch the bangles from her wrists. Evidently the men became frightened that her screams would bring others on the scene, and they decamped without stealing anything.

At the Magistracy yesterday a Chinese contractor was charged before Mr. E. A. Irving with failing to take proper precautions during blasting operations at Yaumati. For the prosecution it was stated that after the blast stones fell into Shanghai Street, one alighting on the head of a man and "broke" it, as the witness said. Mr. Gardiner, who appeared for the defence, said the man had taken every precaution. His Worship accepted this view and dismissed the charge.

The question of Hongkong coolie recruiting came under discussion at a North Borneo Chamber of Commerce committee meeting held on September 23rd, when the Secretary was instructed to address the Government, as the present position amounted to an absolute deadlock. In view of the seriousness of the situation, the Officer-Administering the Government was to be asked that the whole matter might be settled by cable communication, and was also to be asked to suggest that the Court of Directors should make representations to the Colonial Office, placing the whole position before them, and invoking their aid to end the present untenable position.

A Chinese free library has been opened with great ceremony in Rangoon in view of a large number of Chinese youths who have received an English education, and the absence of facilities to improve their knowledge of English after leaving school. "The Friend of Chinese Society" felt the need of a free public library and conceived the happy idea of establishing one. The Celestial Buddhist Association having decided upon dissolution, the furniture and books of this organisation were made over to the other Society to form the nucleus of the proposed library. The library is stocked with a regular supply of local dailies and weeklies and also a large number of English illustrated papers, magazines and other periodicals. The object of the founders is to foster a love of reading in general and culture in particular.

BOYCOTT OF A CHINESE STEAM-BOAT COMPANY.

A large number of people assembled on the Hau Tak wharf on Monday night with the object of making a demonstration against the Wing On steamer, which for some reason or other they wished to boycott. The police having been informed of what was happening arrived on the scene, and several people in the mob commenced to throw stones. Police Sergeant Angus was struck on the hand with a stone, but not seriously, and one man was arrested and brought before the Magistrate yesterday and fined $10.

PROHIBITION OF SAND CRACKERS AT SINGAPORE.

A new bill is to be introduced into the Legislative Council, extending section 7 of the Explosives Act to include the prohibition of the manufacture, possession and importation of sand crackers. The objects and reasons state:—

The nuisance and danger caused during the last Chinese New Year Festival by disorderly persons throwing sand-crackers at women in the public thoroughfares of the town called forth so much resentment and indignation on the part of the public as to demand its suppression by strong preventive measures lest its recurrence should lead to serious breaches of the peace.

LESSOR AND LESSEE.

At the Magistracy yesterday an interesting case was heard before Mr. Irving in which the master and the owner of a junk were summoned to explain why they had removed from the Crown foreshore near Castle Peak Bay stone without a permit from the Director of Public Works. Mr. Edwards, building inspector in the Public Works Department, appeared in support of the summons, and Mr. F. B. L. Bowley represented the defendants.

Mr. Edwards stated that on October 8th he went to the locality in question and there saw defendant's junk engaged in removing stone from the foreshore. The stone was being conveyed from the shore to the junk in a sampan, and five people were on the shore quarrying the stone.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bowley, witness said he knew that the first defendant was constructing a breakwater for the Admiralty at Kowloon, and in order to construct that breakwater he required quantities of boulders such as those witness had seen in the junk. There was no reason to suppose that the stone was going anywhere than to the Admiralty breakwater.

Mr. Bowley—They were going from the King's foreshore to the King's breakwater?

Witness—I suppose so.

Mr. Bowley—Was the junkmaster doing any injury to the foreshore by removing the stone from that particular spot?

Witness—No particular injury, but he was doing it without a permit.

His Worship—And removing the stone?

Witness—Yes, and removing stone the property of the Crown.

Mr. Bowley—No injury to an embankment or a paddy field or anything like that?

His Worship—Is there any reason why the defendant should prefer to quarry outside a particular area?

Witness—I know no reason except perhaps perversity; or that the stone could be more easily obtained in the particular area from which it was taken. There is some stone that does not need blasting.

Mr. Bowley submitted that the second defendant (the owner) had not committed any offence. The charge was "collecting and carrying away stones without a permit from the Crown foreshore," but it was clearly proved from the evidence that he had not been connected with the carrying away or collecting of the stone.

His Worship observed that the defendant had not taken sufficient precautions to see that his employees were not collecting the stone.

Mr. Bowley replied that the master was not responsible for that action.

His Worship—Why?

Mr. Bowley contended that it was possible for him to have given his servants instructions which they had obeyed. He was the owner of the junk and had leased it to the first defendant and told him to bring a cargo of stone and he would buy it from him, deducting the rent of the junk from the price to be paid for the stone. The relationship between the parties was that of the lessor to the lessee or as between buyer and seller. Civilly, there was no responsibility for this action and criminally there could not be.

His Worship—A rent collector is responsible for the stamped receipts made out by his servants.

Mr. Bowley—That is a revenue case, your Worship.

His Worship—I think this is similar.

Mr. Bowley—There is no revenue attached to this.

His Worship—Are the quarries leased?

Mr. Edwards—The quarries are leased.

His Worship—Is there a fee attached to this lease or permit?

Mr. Edwards—There is a fee attached to these permits for collecting stone.

Mr. Bowley pointed out that in the case of receipted bills any deficiency in the stamping might be used by the servants for their own benefit. In that case no such thing could be said, and the relationship between master and servant did not exist. Supposing the second defendant had told the first defendant not to take the stone from any places other than those where he had permission and he took upon himself the responsibility of taking it from places other than those, he could not see how the first defendant could be held responsible. Of course if the Ordinance had been framed differently the permit holder might be held responsible for the action of the subcontractor in abusing the limits of the permit. In the case of the second defendant it might be taken that he had mistaken the marks indicating where he should take stone from and that he acted through ignorance. He thought the first defendant should be cautioned and that the second defendant should be dismissed.

His Worship replied that he would give his decision next morning.

HONGKONG LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

A BATCH OF QUESTIONS.

A meeting of the Legislative Council is called for to-morrow.

THE STATE OF THE ROADS.

The Hon. Mr. Pollock has given notice of his intention to ask:—
1.—Is the Government aware that for several months portions of the following roads—Barker Road, Magazine Gap Road, Seymour Road, Robinson Road and Hollywood Road have been in a state of disrepair?

2.—Will the Government state why these roads were not given attention as soon as it became necessary to repair them?

THE ESCAPE OF A PRISONER FROM THE HOSPITAL.

The Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock, K.C., will ask:—

Why was the man who entered Beaconsfield Arcade at night and who subsequently escaped from the Government Civil Hospital sent to that Hospital instead of to the Prison Hospital? Was there not room in the Prison Hospital at the time? Were there any other persons under Police detention in the Government Civil Hospital at the time. Will the Government lay upon the table the statement, or, if more than one, the statements of Chinese Constable 393 as to how the man succeeded in making his escape? Did the Constable let the man out of his sight accidentally or intentionally, and, if so, for how long?

TRUCKS AND TROLLEYS.

The Hon. Mr. Pollock will ask:—

Are any steps taken, and what, and by whom, to test the efficiency of brakes on trucks, trolleys and handcarts, when loaded up? Are there any and what Regulations in force making the use of such brakes compulsory under a penalty?

THE PRISON STAFF.

Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock, K.C., will ask:—

Will the Government give the numbers of

(i.)—Prison Officers on the European Staff, and

(ii.)—Prison Officers on the Indian Staff, who have been on the Prison Staff and who have either (a) left or (b) been dismissed from the Prison Staff, for each year since and including 1902? Will the Government also state in how many of such instances the Officer was drafted from the Prison Staff into the Police Force?

THE ESCAPE FROM THE GAOL.

The Hon. Mr. Pollock has given notice of his intention to ask the following series of questions in regard to the escape of a notorious prisoner from the Gaol:—

(i.)—Will the Government state what kind of instrument was used by the prisoner who escaped from Victoria Gaol in the early morning of the 5th instant in digging his way out through the wall? Will the Government also state how the prisoner (so far as can be ascertained) managed to get hold of such an instrument?

(ii.)—Will the Government lay upon the table the Departmental Inquiry as to how the prisoner made his escape?

(iii.)—Will the Government state how often during the night each cell is looked into,

(a.)—By an Officer on the European Staff, and

(b.)—By an Officer on the Indian Staff?

(iv.)—At what hours do the sanitary coolies go round the cells and under what supervision do they go round? Are they Chinese and are they free men or prisoners?

(v.)—How many Officers and of what rating,

(a.) Belonging to the European Staff and

(b.) Belonging to the Indian Staff are inside of the walls of the Prison, at one and the same time, between the hours of midnight and 5 a.m.?

CHINA AND HER FUTURE.

The following letter appears in the Times of the 23rd ult.:—

Sir,—There is a practical illustration of the soundness of the deductions in the article on China in the Times of to-day and of the editorial comments thereon in the fact that the production of tea this season has increased, although the provinces where it is mainly manufactured were close to the disturbances. Even the markets went on the even tenor of their way, although the Chinese part of Hankow was destroyed. Not only is the crop larger this year, but so far there is an absence of low-grade tea. The predictions, in fact, of interested dealers that there would be no China tea this year were completely justified. The organization of labour in China is admirable—strikes are of rare occurrence, and there is no allotment of coolies from one estate to another, as is common in India; and although any change in the national character will take centuries to evolve, the new governing powers, who are largely guided by men who have received a Western education and training, are bound to gradually influence the whole body politic. Already they are seeking if they can learn anything useful in the way of agriculture from our colleges. In the way of commercial acuteness they are already our masters.—Yours faithfully,

C. LAWRENCE, Secretary.

SUPREME COURT.

Tuesday, October 22nd.

IN CRIMINAL JURISDICTION.

BEFORE HIS HONOUR MR. W. REES
DAVID, J. (CHIEF JUSTICE).

The hearing of the charge against Ibrahim, a soldier in the 126th Baluchistan Infantry, of feloniously murdering a Subadar in the same regiment, named Ali Shafa, was resumed yesterday.

Mr. Jenkin, for the defence, continued his cross-examination of a corporal of the Regiment. Witness said that he was half asleep when he was awakened by the report of a gun, and he would swear that he saw the accused staggering backward as the result of the gun kicking, but later contradicted himself, and then re-affirmed his original statement. He examined the gun in the guard-room because he was suspicious.

Mr. Jenkin—Why did you not say that at Canton?—Because I was not asked.

His Lordship—I think the depositions at Canton were of a most meagre description. In a murder charge particularly they should have been very full.

A private said he saw the accused with the rifle in his hand. The last witness and himself "charged" him and wrested the gun from him. They found one empty cartridge case on the ground in front of the accused, who also had four cases between his fingers. Witness handed accused over to the guard commander.

The commander of the guard on the night of the alleged murder was next called. He said that accused was brought to him in charge of two sepoy, and he was conveyed to the guard-room, bound, and was seated on the doorstep of the room. Several of the deceased's friends came around him and began to use abusive language toward accused, who made a statement.

At this point Mr. Jenkin interpolated—At the time accused made any statement he was under arrest. He was in the charge of the guard, there was an armed sentry over him, and he was surrounded by a great many of the Subadar's friends, who were swearing at him. They were standing around him in a threatening attitude, and he (Council) had no doubt they were using threats towards him. Now, as they knew, the commission of an offence in the Army did not call for the sending for a civil policeman. This man was under arrest and he was in custody by the order of his superior officer. If this evidence was admissible at all, it was not admissible from the mouth of this witness. The Subadar's friends should be in Court, and should give evidence themselves. He suggested that was not the way the Crown should attempt to get this evidence in. The Crown had no difficulty in getting these witnesses. They could send to Kowloon and get them in at any moment. Whilst accused was in custody they had no right to ask him questions.

His Lordship—They should have been called, but I cannot exclude the evidence of the present witness.

Continuing, the advocate said he heard the accused say, "I have done well in killing him. I am thankful."

After the tiffin interval, Mr. Jenkin asked his Lordship to grant a reservation upon the second point he had raised.

His Lordship—I have no doubt about the admissibility at all. If there was no improper compulsion upon the prisoner to make any statement at all, or any question put to him, either promise or threat, to confess, then the confession is admissible.

A native doctor deposed that he heard a rifle fired and also the guard called out. He thought some Chinese had attacked them. When he came out of the camp he saw some men running inside and outside. He asked what had happened, and in consequence of what he was told he went out into the road and saw a dead man lying down on his face. It was Subadar Ali Shafa. There was a wound like a bullet wound right through his shoulder blades. A bullet made a bigger wound going out than when it was entering.

Mr. Jenkin—Can you swear that the bullet was similar to those used in the regiment?—Yes, it is similar.

Are not similar cartridges used by other regiments?—I suppose so.

Dr. Orwin, a naval surgeon, deposed to being called to see the deceased, and detailed the nature of the wound, which, he said, must have been made by some cylindrical object, resembling a bullet.

Major A. L. Barrett, the officer commanding the regiment, was next called. He said he was informed of the occurrence, and saw the accused in the guard-room. He said to the man, "Why have you done such a senseless act?"—and he replied—

Mr. Jenkin rose to object. He submitted that this was not admissible, primarily because the man was in custody. He was approached by the senior officer of his Regiment and was asked a certain question—a question which disclosed no crime at all, merely a general question. Whilst the accused was in custody that question was not admissible.

His Lordship—There is nothing in it inducing him to make a confession.

Mr. Jenkin—I think a lot depends upon the relative position of the parties.

His Lordship—I must admit this evidence.

Major Barrett, continuing, stated that accused said, "For three or four days now he has been abusing me. Of course, I shot him."

Mr. Jenkin—Do you call murder a foolish thing?—Well, it was not a question of foolishness. I said "senseless," and I spoke in Hindustani.

The case was again adjourned.

BEFORE HIS HONOUR MR. H. H. J. GOMPERTZ (PUNISH JUDGE).

FIVE YEARS FOR RECEIVING STOLEN PROPERTY.

Charges of housebreaking and receiving in respect to two different houses were preferred against Li Wong and Wong San.

The charge of theft of clothing from a house in Uti Hing Lane, tenanted by Japanese, on 27th August, was first proceeded with, and prisoners pleaded not guilty.

Mr. C. G. Alabaster, barrister, instructed by the Crown Solicitor (Mr. P. M. Hodgson), prosecuted.

The following comprised the jury:—Messrs. L. J. Blackburn (foreman), V. C. da Rocha, J. M. F. Basto, R. K. Miller, A. A. Alves, F. Reichmann and H. L. Beyer.

Mr. Alabaster said the occupants of the house on the night in question closed the folding door and fastened it with string. The next morning they found the door had been pried open and certain articles of clothing stolen. On the same morning the two prisoners were seen together. The first had a bundle under his arm and in it was part of the stolen property. Upon being asked where they got it, the second prisoner ran away, but was quickly caught, at 15, Amy Lane, where more stolen clothing was found. Where persons were found shortly after a robbery in possession of the proceeds of a robbery it was evidence from which it might be inferred that they actually took part in the robbery, and they could be held guilty of receiving the property well knowing it to have been stolen.

Evidence was given, and, acting on the advice of his Lordship, the jury found the prisoners not guilty on the first count, but guilty on the second, that of receiving.

Both had been previously convicted and were sentenced to five years' hard labour.

The second couple of charges were not proceeded with, on the restitution of the property alleged to have been stolen.

THEFT OF A PIG.

Ip Pak Shan alias Ip Yeung Fuk was indicted for the theft of a pig from No. 57, To Kwa Wan, the property of Wong Sui.

Mr. Alabaster said the owner missed the pig on September 9th. On September 12th while on the way to Kowloon market, she saw it tied up outside a house. She informed the police and defendant was arrested.

Prisoner was convicted and sentenced to three years' hard labour.

NO OPIUM IN HUNAN.

A foreign gentleman, not a missionary, who has just returned from a long tour through the districts in the South of the province of Hunan—Chengchow, Kueiyangchow, Yungchow, Paoking, etc.—informs us, says the Central China Post, that on the course of a five weeks' journey he met with no opium being grown or smoked. Everywhere there were proclamations out against it and the people frightened of the very word. He enquired for it himself, and his coolies enquired constantly if none could be had on the quiet, but they were everywhere assured that the penalties were too severe for anyone to risk being mixed up again in the opium business, so their simulated craving had to go unsatisfied.

A missionary who is familiar with the same district as it was ten and twenty years ago bears witness that at that time opium abounded everywhere. In every roadside teahouse where the coolies stopped for a rest it was obtainable. In almost every room of every inn at night it was being smoked, and in going along the streets the fumes might be smelled at every door. The coolies class in particular were addicted to the vice and declare that it was impossible for them to carry their loads without opium. Most of their hardships were spent in the purchase of the drug, leaving their backs bare and their stomachs empty.

The Hunan Government officials, both the old and the new, are to be congratulated in bringing about a transformation like this for the good of the people. Those persons who will persist in representing them as only half-hearted in the matter of opium suppression, as well as those who would force the foreign opium on them at the bayonet's point, might profitably take a fresh look at the deplorable.

SANITARY BOARD.

A meeting of the Sanitary Board was held yesterday afternoon—Mr. R. O. Hutchison, President, presiding. There were also present:—Hon. Mr. E. R. Hallifax, Colonel Irwin, Messrs. W. L. Carter, F. B. L. Bowley, Chan Kai Ming, Dr. F. Clark (Medical Officer of Health), and Mr. W. Bowen Rowlands (Secretary).

KENNEDY TOWN SLAUGHTER-HOUSE.

Correspondence relative to the plan of the proposed extension of the Kennedy-town Slaughter-House was submitted.

Dr. Clark explained that the plan was approved by the Board in May last. The alterations and extension were carried out, he understood, on the advice of Mr. Adam Gibson, Colonial Veterinary Surgeon. When he left the plans were only in pencil, and it was probably owing to that fact that he had overlooked the point that the building as planned placed the slaughter-house and cattle depot in communication. That was one of the things which were contrary to the system carried out at the slaughter-house. He explained the modifications necessary, and moved that they be approved.

This was agreed to.

THE DEATH RATE.

The mortality statistics for the week ending 26th September showed a death rate for the whole Colony of 20.30 per 1,000, as against 23.8 in the corresponding week of last year.

Mr. BOWLEY—In which district did the one European death from malaria occur? Dr. CLARK—In No. 2 Health district (Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, Arsenal Street). He was a recent arrival from Shanghai, and was only at the Home two days when he was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital, where he died. He was a ship's engineer.

PURE LIQUORS.

The Government Analyst (Mr. F. Browne) reported that during the quarter ending 30th September he had examined two samples of brandy, two of gin, three of milk, and two of port, and found all genuine.

THE DEFENCE OF THE EMPIRE.

Everybody interested in the defence of the Empire, says the Naval and Military Record, should read the able essay by Major H. L. Pritchard, R.E., which has been awarded the second prize for 1911 by the Royal United Service Institution. Competitors for the gold medal were required to grapple with the following problem:—"The best national system for providing the necessary military force: (1) To secure the safety of the United Kingdom; (2) To support the defence of the Empire; (3) To assist in maintaining the balance of power in Europe. Major Pritchard's essay has now been printed in the journal of the institution. He is a convinced advocate of national service, but wants better-trained troops than the scheme of the N.S. League would provide. He advocates, in fact, conscription; and the plea is at least as reasonable as that of the League. We need, according to Major Pritchard, not less than one million of fully-trained troops to safeguard the United Kingdom against the invasion of 250,000 men, and simultaneously to free the fleet for offensive operations and to guard the trade routes. In addition we are held to need 118,000 troops to garrison India, Egypt, the Crown Colonies, and the coaling stations. For the defence of India against Russia we are held to need 600,000 troops, of which one-half would be furnished by the United Kingdom, the rest by India and the dominions. Over and above this huge army we are held to need an Expeditionary Force of 200,000 to 300,000 troops ready for instant use on the Continent in co-operation with the French Army. Having explained why this huge army is needed for security, Major Pritchard has no difficulty in proving that the voluntary system of service cannot provide it. It provides an average of 38,000 recruits annually for all branches of the Regulars, and never more than 270,000 Volunteers or Territorials. It will be gathered that Major Pritchard has no sort of confidence in the policy of defence which relies mainly upon the Navy—the policy, that is, which now governs the naval and military expenditure. He considers the defence problem of the Empire essentially a problem of the military standpoint, and without regard to cost or the wish of the people. We have no quarrel with him for that. It is a line of argument which the essayist was fully entitled to develop. The council of the institution evidently holds that our only hope lies in compulsory service.

NEW BATTLESHIPS.

VESSELS TO BE OIL-DRIVEN.

Increased importance has been given to the recently-appointed Special Commission on Oil-Fuel, which has commenced its labours under the chairmanship of Lord Fisher, by the report that in the ships of the new battleship programme, one of which is to be laid down at Devonport, oil alone will be used for the purposes of generating steam. This decision is destined to have far-reaching effects alike on the design of future vessels and on the personnel required to man them. At present, it is provided for about 5,000 tons of fuel, of which 1,200 tons may be taken as oil. In the previous design, "all oil" driven ships, less space would be required for the same quantity of fuel, hence important modifications in design can be made which will increase the power of attack and defence of the new ships. The introduction of oil-driven boilers will also enable the stoker complement to be appreciably decreased (an important consideration with our rapidly-expanding fleet), together with a considerable saving in the weight of stores and fittings required for the maintenance of the new oil-carrying ships, on which the efficiency of the future oil-driven squadrons will to a great extent depend, will take place simultaneously with that of the new battleships.

ENGLAND'S GREATEST BOWLER.

BARNES' USEFUL RECORD IN TEST MATCHES.

A Ceylon journalist, at present at Home, writes chatily about England's greatest bowler. He says:—Barnes, for whose discovery as a bowler chief credit is due to A. C. McLaren, was an unknown quantity in 1901 when the English skipper took him on tour to Australia after he had bowled in two innings for Lancashire and taken 6 wickets for 99 runs. "Who is Barnes?" was the query on everyone's lips when he was selected for a place in the English team. But he fully justified McLaren's high opinion of him and until he was disabled in the Third Test match he had taken 41 wickets for 16 runs each—a truly remarkable performance for any bowler on the adamant Australian pitches. From that moment his success as a first class bowler was assured. But he played in only one Test match in 1912 when Darling's team visited England and took seven wickets for 99. In 1907-08 he again toured Australia with A. O. Jones' team and bowled best for his side in the tests. He played for England in three tests when the Australians visited England in 1909 and captured 17 wickets, while as a member of Warner's last victorious combination he created a record by taking 34 wickets in a series of Test matches in a single season. The previous best had been Noble's 32 for Australia in 1901-02. His wonderful work with the ball in the recovery of the "Ashes" is well known and needs no recapitulation here. In the last series of tests he brought his aggregate in 17 matches to 101 wickets, and that only against Australia. Meeting South Africa for the first time this season Barnes took 34 wickets in three matches for 282 runs and thereby equalled his performance against the Australians in the last test series. This year he has bowled only in one innings against the Cornstalks and has failed to take a single wicket though he has given 74 runs! That was not the first time that Barnes failed to get a wicket against the Australians. In 1901-03 at Adelaide and in 1907-08 at Melbourne he bowled without effect. In all Barnes has captured 135 wickets for 2,622 runs, giving him the splendid average of 19.4.

He wants seven wickets more to beat Trumble's record in 32 Test matches, and may very likely get them against Australia next week. Barnes is indeed the bowler of a century, and in test match cricket at least his performances are without parallel, for he has played for 10 years in 22 matches and taken more wickets than any English bowler. He was given a "benefit" last month by Staffordshire for whom he has done mighty deeds in second class county cricket. For Stafford he has taken 687 wickets in 8 years. In Lancashire League cricket his aggregate in 9 years was 780 wickets and in the North Staffordshire League matches he has taken 528 wickets. In second class cricket he has taken 2,018 at an average of less than ten!

THE FITTING OF OIL TANKS IN ORDINARY VESSELS.

Some details can now be given of the scheme mentioned in The Times of September 11th for converting ordinary cargo-vessels into oil tank steamers in order, to some slight extent, to counteract the present difficulty of securing a sufficient number of tank steamers to meet the greatly increasing trade in oil. The scheme is now being discussed with much interest by experts both in this country and in the United States, and for underwriters it introduces quite a new set of problems.

The first vessel to undergo alterations is it is believed, the Norwegian steamer Borgestad, due to leave New York in her new capacity very shortly. This vessel, which was built in 1906 on the cantilever system and is 3,944 tons gross, has been fitted with no fewer than 25 independent steel tanks ranging from 22ft. to over 28ft. in diameter. The plating of the tanks varies in thickness from 2in. for the middle strakes to 7-16in. for the bottom plating, which, since two of the tanks hold between 400 and 500 tons of oil, does not seem to be abnormal.

The tanks are shored with wood from the ship's side and also from each other with wooden planks vertically fitted. Cast-iron key wedges are placed between these planks and are drawn together by bolts, the effect being to force the tanks apart and wedge them against the sides of the ship and the bulkhead shores.

The most valuable criticism, if there be any, of these plans will result from practical experience, but at present two practical objections to the fitting of ordinary cargo vessels in this way are being subject to examination.

In the first place there is the consideration that the arrangement of wooden shoring might be severely tested in bad weather, and that even with the ordinary movement of the ship the tanks might get adrift. Secondly, it is suggested that the clamping and shifting of the wooden shores, together with any movement of the tanks, might carry away the cast-iron parts of the pipe lines, and although valves are fitted inside of each tank to stop the oil from flowing out, the necessary repairs to the pipe lines might, it is thought, be claimed as heavy weather damage.

Thirdly, there is the risk of fire to be considered. It appears that no cofferdam is provided in the Borgestad between the afterhold and the stokehold, and as the afterhold is not riveted for oil-carrying there is the possibility that gases might leak through into the stokehold.

Another consideration, which underwriters must be expected to bear in mind, is that in the event of serious damage to the bottom or sides of the vessel the independent tanks would have to be removed, which would mean also the removal of the permanent hatches and part of the deck. Altogether, the new factors which are introduced by this type of reconstructed vessel are by no means few or unimportant.

It is understood that two British steamers built on the cantilever system—the Horley (late Fritze) and Fornebo—and two British steamers built with the longitudinal framing—the Batiscan and Mackinong—have been, or are now being, fitted with independent oil tanks; but whether the plans adopted in their case follow those used for the Borgestad is not clear.

INSPECTION OF OVERSEA FORCES.

SIR IAN HAMILTON'S TOUR.

General Sir Ian Hamilton, Inspector-General of the Oversea Forces, left London on the 28th ult. upon a lengthy tour of inspection of his Majesty's troops, garrisons, and defences in the Far East.

The Times of that date says:—

The position of a military Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean has been subjected to diverse appreciations, but no one can deny the usefulness and indeed the necessity, of the wider sphere of duties which has been committed to Sir Ian Hamilton's charge. In one form or another the inspection of overseas garrisons by some representative of the Army Council is a need of the times. All detachments tend to deteriorate in the natural order of things, and it is entirely impracticable for an administrative body like the Army Council to maintain close personal touch with men and things in all our military commands throughout the Empire. To some one or other the duty of inspection must be delegated, so that administrators at home may receive a clear impression of the waste and necessities of troops which are in the main paid for and administered by the War Office. Some living link must exist between the Army Council and commanders abroad, and some inspector must review the whole of the overseas forces, other than those of India and the self-governing Dominions, in order to supply at need an opinion concerning the general and relative importance of the garrisons occupied and of their state of efficiency and preparedness for war.

ORIGIN OF THE APPOINTMENT.

An attempt was made when Sir John French was Inspector-General of the Forces to cumulate the functions of inspection at home and abroad. Energetic though Sir John is well known to be, and far and fast though he travelled, it was soon found that the duties allotted to him exceeded human powers, and it was a wise measure to divide the duties of inspection between two general officers, of whom one should restrict himself to the home forces and the other concern himself with the forces overseas. Whether eventually these high officers should become explicitly agents of the Chief of the Imperial General Staff and act under his orders is an open question, but in point of practice the relations between these three military dignitaries are on the whole so close and cordial that the same result is almost attained.

It is very much easier for a commander at a distance to discuss the affairs of his command by word of mouth with an official who can return and convey his personal impressions to the highest military authorities at home than to fill pages with reports, which may or may not be attended to and are very often incompletely understood. It is, again, advisable that a general officer of experience and capacity should be at the service of Dominion Governments if they desire to refer to him. Sir John French's fruitful visit to Canada is in the memory of all, while last year Sir Ian Hamilton was at the disposal of the Union Government in South Africa, and he may possibly proceed to Canada after his return home next May. This latter visit is at present only informally suggested and not definitely arranged, but no self-governing Dominion can fail to gain by learning from a competent general officer the point of view of the War Office and the general situation of the garrisons and forces of the Empire.

This year Sir Ian Hamilton's duties will take him far afield. He will proceed eastward over the Trans-Siberian railway and begin his work by an inspection of the Legation Guard and other military and volunteer bodies in China, where the situation is not so steadfast that we can afford to neglect reasonable precautions. He will then visit Hongkong, which has a garrison long recognized by soldiers to be insufficient, and will next inspect Singapore and attend to various military matters in the Straits Settlements, passing on to Ceylon and visiting Colombo. Sir Ian's programme for Egypt, the Sudan, and Cyprus is not yet fixed, but he will probably be back at Malta at the end of January and return to England, if the visit to Canada is arranged, in May. Each one of these stepping stones of Empire has its own problems of a defensive order, and as the naval aspect of affairs takes precedence in importance, it is to be supposed and desired that Mr. Churchill will give the Inspector-General every facility for acquainting himself with the naval point of view.

THE POSITION IN EAST AFRICA.

With the West Indies and questions arising from the pending opening of the Panama Canal Sir Ian Hamilton has concerned himself in a previous voyage. South Africa and Rhodesia have also been visited, and on the whole there will be very few garrisons in distant seas with which Sir Ian will not be tolerably well acquainted after his return from his present voyage. One notable exception must, however, be made. North-East Africa is not at present included in the tour, and there is no part of the Empire where a clear and steady military view of the local situation is more urgently needed. In all North-East Africa—namely, Somaliland, Nyasaland, Uganda, and British East Africa—the military situation has become difficult, and the same thing may be said of the Southern Sudan. There is no part of the Empire no part where things are being more rapidly allowed to drift. No central authority is responsible for the handling of military questions in this extensive district, and this situation is not one which should be permitted to continue.

The new system under which a general review of the garrisons of the Empire takes place from time to time supplies the necessary data for a revision of our defensive arrangements, should such a revision be required. Things change very rapidly in the modern world, and the soldier who sleeps for 24 hours becomes a Rip van Winkle when he awakes. No new distribution of force can, of course, take place except by mutual agreement between the naval and military authorities, but some changes are impending, and it is comforting that, thanks to the journeys of Sir John French and Sir Ian Hamilton, we shall be well informed of the facts. Many of our garrisons are notably and manifestly insufficient, but it is not sound policy to scatter troops wholesale in defensive positions and to deprive ourselves of our offensive arms. The golden mean between the two extremes may be hard to find, but at least we can say that such missions as that upon which Sir Ian Hamilton sets out to-day will afford us the necessary materials for forming a reasoned opinion upon a subject of great moment.

POST OFFICE NOTICE

XMAS AND NEW YEAR PARCELS.

The Public are informed that the Christmas and New Year Parcel Mail to the United Kingdom and Countries beyond, will be closed in this office on Friday, the 8th of November, at 5 p.m. This Parcel Mail by the long-sea route via Gibraltar is due to reach London on the 14th of December. Parcels may be forwarded by the same Mail via Brindisi with an extra fee of 60 cents. Parcels to be registered are due to reach London on the 14th of December. The following Mail of the 22nd of November is not due in London via Gibraltar, until the 28th of December, via Brindisi on the 29th of December.

Parcels containing Gold or Silver must be insured for at least part of their value. All Insured Parcels must be sealed. All the seals must be of the same coloured wax and must bear the impression of a private device. This device must be the same on each seal.

Straight, Curved, Crossed or Dotted Lines are not admissible. Buttons, Coins or Tringles are not to be used for sealing. The Clerks of the Post Office are forbidden to affix stamps on Letters or Parcels or to seal any article for the Public.

Parcels that in the opinion of the officer handling the same do not comply with the regulations will not be accepted. It is requested that Parcels be posted early.

The Public are requested to have their correspondence addressed to their house numbers and not their house names, as such names are often confusing to Chinese Postmen.

The India, with the English Mail, left Singapore on Saturday, the 19th inst, at 8 a.m., and may be expected to arrive here to-morrow, at about 6 a.m. This packet brings the Parcel Mail closed in London for despatch by the all sea route on the 18th ultimo and for despatch overland on the 25th ultimo.
